Everyone was welcoming and helpful.

I was entering my last semester of my undergraduate when I stumbled upon an internship with the Comptroller's office. I had little knowledge about what the Comptroller's office did and what my exact role would be during the internship. Through the interview process and during my own research, I learned much about what the Comptroller's office does for the public and what my role would be. At the start of my internship, I was very scared of what to expect as it was mostly remote. When my start date came around, I met some of the team and all the fright went away. From day one, I was welcomed with open arms to a big family.

I had many opportunities to expand my knowledge of the agency's core functions.

Throughout my internship, I was able to meet everyone in my division and they all acted like we had known each other for years. It was like I was a part of a big family. My internship consisted of working with the compliance team and helping assist with security risk assessment. I was very fortunate to also observe an agencywide security assessment. I was also able to meet Comptroller Glenn Hegar and get inside knowledge about his position and what he does at CPA and for the state of Texas.

I found a rewarding career at CPA.

As my internship came to an end, I was very fortunate to receive a full-time position. I happily accepted the role as an analyst for the Information Security Division. By the end of the internship, I was fully rewarded with an immense amount of knowledge. I was able to interact with different teams throughout CPA and see what they do daily. CPA is full of opportunities and wonderful people. Members within our team motivate each other to become better. There are a lot of resources available here to help you further your career.
